The council tax precept for Northamptonshire Police and Northamptonshire Fire and Rescue Service

The precept is the part of the council tax (18% of the total bill) that goes towards Northamptonshire Police and Northamptonshire Fire and Rescue Service.

Both services are facing significant financial challenges and this year, I am asking you to pay:

a year
an increase of £15 a year in the council tax precept for a Band D household towards local policing.

£10
an increase of £10 a year in the council tax precept for a Band D household towards your fire and rescue service.

This increase will go towards keeping police officer and firefighter numbers and delivering essential frontline services.

I will make sure the money you pay continues to help deliver local priorities and will invest in preventing crime, reducing demand on policing and supporting victims.

You can find out more about how your money is spent over the page.

Through my office I deliver services that focus on intervening early to prevent crime and support victims. My teams work to reduce demand on policing and make communities safer.

The new Anti-Social Behaviour (ASB) Early Intervention Team works with frontline officers to intervene early with young people at risk of committing further anti-social behaviour in their neighbourhoods

The Immediate Justice team works with low level offenders to repair the harm they have caused to communities through reparative work – with those who engaged far less likely to re-offend

The award-winning Op Satin project has reduced the number of occasions where children have repeatedly gone missing – thanks to early intervention officers putting support mechanisms in place to prevent repeat behaviour

More than £100,000 has been awarded to grassroots projects through my Safe and Sound grants scheme – helping to prevent crime and better connect local communities

More than £90,000 has been invested into local schemes to make roads safer for both pedestrians and drivers – thanks to funding from my Road Safety Community Fund

I have launched the Northamptonshire Women's Charter, bringing together organisations to promote safer environments for women – and therefore everyone – particularly in the workplace
